Philadelphia University School of Architecture and Design
Lecture Features Noted Architect
Moshe Safdie Presents “Current Work”

An award-winning, internationally recognized expert, Moshe Safdie has been practicing for more than 30 years. After making his mark in 1967 with the his Habitat project for the World Exhibition in Canada, Safdie and his firm— with locations in Boston, Toronto and Israel— have designed museums, libraries and performance venues for major cities around the world. In fact, he recently won a prestigious competition to design and build the $200 million Free Library of Philadelphia Central Library Renovation and Expansion. Safdie received his degree in Architecture from McGill University in Quebec.

On Wednesday, April, 2004 at 6:00 pm, Moshe Safdie will be speaking at the Tuttleman Center at Philadelphia University. His presentation, Current Work, is sponsored by Francis Cauffman Foley Hoffmann Architects, Philadelphia.

-more-
Philadelphia University, founded in 1884, is a private university with 3,500 part- and full-time students from 38 states and 42 countries. The University offers more than 40 undergraduate and graduate degree programs leading to the bachelor of science, bachelor of architecture, master’s degrees and a doctoral degree in Textile Engineering and Science. Academic programs encompass architecture, design, business, textiles, fashion, science and health.

Media is cordially invited to cover this event. For more information or directions, please contact Emily Spitale at 215.951.2851.

-30-